

Lake Mead National Recreation Area (Lake Mead NRA)
National Park Service Entrance Fees for Commercial Use Authorizations

Lake Mead NRA is a unit of National Park Service and an entrance fee area. The entrance identification (ID) badges for the Commercial Use Authorization (CUA) program for Lake Mead NRA are used to show entrance stations and law enforcement rangers that the permittee has a CUA. Permittees are required to show their issued ID badges upon entry into Lake Mead NRA and upon request by a park employee.

Permittees will provide a list of every employee to the Concession Management office, so that we may issue them a badge. Permittees may provide an electronic business logo to be included on their CUA badge. Every annual commercial entrance badge will have a cost recovery fee of $10.00.

Permittees providing commercial services are not assessed an entrance fee when conducting commercial business. In addition, the following information may be required to be provided at the entrance stations. Permittees may be required to check out upon leaving Lake Mead NRA.

1. Destination
2. Name of concessioner
3. Name and phone number of customer
4. Anticipated duration of job

Individual Entry Fees: Note all passengers of commercial businesses are required to pay the standard individual entry fee of $5 per person. Therefore, any passenger in the vehicle not in possession of a valid CUA annual commercial entrance badge as an employee of the business is required to pay the individual entry fee.

Use of a CUA annual commercial entrance badge for entry into Lake Mead NRA when not officially conducting and providing commercial services may result in revocation of the CUA. Permittees are responsible for all employees working under their permit. If an employee is no longer employed by the permittee, the individual is no longer authorized entry into Lake Mead NRA with the commercial entrance badge. It is the responsibility of the permittee to have the employee surrender the badge, notify the National Park Service and return the badge to Concession Management.
